«FINANCIAL ASPECTS OF GLOBAL ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT: CHALLENGES AND PROSPECTS»

Scientific Conference

in honour of the 25th anniversary of the Department of International Finance and the 80th anniversary of the Educational and Scientific Institute of International Relations

Wednesday 15th May 2024

CALL FOR ABSTRACTS

The conference aims to exchange research and practical developments on three key aspects. Firstly, it seeks to identify the main trends in the development of international financial markets and assess the consequences of Russia's war against Ukraine for the global financial system. Secondly, the conference aims to identify the key determinants of Ukraine's financial security and develop recommendations to enhance the resilience of the national economy. Lastly, it aims to launch the "Scientific Student Dialogue" program as a platform for regular interaction and joint research of young academics from different countries in international finance.

CONFERENCE FOCUS AREAS

I. Current Issues in International Finance

1. Transformation of the global economic system in the context of geopolitical shifts and new challenges.
2. The role of international financial institutions in ensuring stability and promoting economic development.
3. Evolution of international financial markets: Innovations, fintech, and risk management.
4. Financing sustainable development: Cooperation between government, private sector, and international institutions.
5. Monetary policy of central banks in the face of global challenges and inflationary pressures.
